Hugh Marshall House
St. Michaels
private

c. 1850

The Hugh Marshall house, now called the Sentimental Journey antique shop, is a two-story, side hall/parlor frame house that dates to the middle years of the nineteenth century. The exterior corbelled base brick chimney, the flush gable ends, and the mid nineteenth-century woodwork on the second floor indicate the house was probably erected during the 1850s and remodeled on the first floor around the turn of the century. The turned post front porch is a distinctive late nineteenth-century feature.

A chain-of-title for the property indicates the house was owned by Hugh Marshall and his wife, Mary, during the middle years of the nineteenth century. In 1887 the property was sold by a Marshall estate trustee to Clifton Hope who built a house on the adjacent corner lot the following year. The property remained in Hope family hands until 1927.

Prepare both a summary paragraph and a general description of the resource and its various elements as it exists today.

The Sentimental Journey antique shop, historically known as the Hugh Marshall house, stands at 402 Talbot Street in the southern business district of St. Michaels, Talbot County, Maryland. The two-story, side hall/parlor house faces east with the gable oriented on a north/south axis.

Built around 1850-1860, the two-story, two-bay frame house is supported by a minimal brick foundation and sheathed with a layer of vinyl siding. The steeply pitched roof is covered with asphalt shingles. Attached to the back of the main block are long shed-roofed additions.

The east (main) elevation is an asymmetrical two-bay facade with a side entrance and flanking display window. The partially glazed front door is framed by a transom and sidelights. Sheltering the entire first floor is a hip roofed porch supported by turned post. Sawn brackets decorate the upper corners of each post, while a rectangular-baluster handrail stretches between the posts. The porch retains a seamed tin roof. Piercing the second floor are a pair of unevenly spaced replacement six-over-six sash windows flanked by vinyl shutters. The cornice is boxed and covered with artificial materials as well.

The south gable end of the main block is distinguished by an exterior, common bond brick chimney. The wide chimney base corbells inward to a single flue stack at the first floor level. The chimney is flanked by replacement window openings on both floors. The gable end is flush.

The north gable end is a plain wall surface aside from a small octagonal window that lights the second floor stair landing.

The west (rear) elevation is fully covered by a shed roofed section that is one bay wider than the main block. The shed addition extends farther north which allowed for a first floor window and a dormer that interrupts the front cornice. A modern shed roofed extension extends the house farther yet.

The interior of the mid nineteenth-century house has been modified as well. The stair rises against the north wall of the entrance hall. A large square newel post and turned balusters support a molded handrail. The stringer is molded and the triangular space below is fitted with narrow beaded boards. Separating the hall from the parlor is a large square columned opening, and fixed to the south wall is a Victorian mantel.

Although the woodwork on the first floor appears to date the house to the late nineteenth century, the wide pine flooring and the plain corner block door surrounds on the second floor suggest that the first floor was heavily reworked during the late nineteenth century.

NOTES Hope was high bidder in sale decreed by Chancery Court of November, 1885. There were two lots, each 58 feet on Talbot Street by 76 feet back. The 58' lot on the south (adjoining Julia Harrington) was said to be occupied by Mrs. Mary E. Marshall. Mary Marshall was the widow of Hugh Marshall, owner of the property in 1854.

From this point the history of the lot is the same as that for the Clifton Hope house, T-560, back to the sale in 1789 by John Thompson of a lot 66' x 80' to Innkeeper Robert Gossage.

Deeds for two separate lots 58 feet each on Talbot Street have not been found. Reference to the Chancery Court case of 1885 might provide an explanation.
